

Poetry Contest Submission: February- 'Love Not Enough'

What's going on in that precious head of yours? Open up, and let me see. Unzip the harsh Thoughts and tormenting emotions that shield your mind from me. Are our memories embedded
In your skin as much as your scent clings to the clothes that I still have from you? Show me your Light, deep within the cracks and lines of your skin; The light that pulled me into your warm
Embrace, once upon a time. Bare your broken soul to me once more and open your heart. For I
Was once your only light when we got swallowed up in the darkness we called love. You've left Me behind, but I'll watch you grow while I fade from your view. Leave your demons with me.
Why? Because you still hold my heart in your icy hands. Because I still love you.